PUSLINCH PROFILE

Meet Taylor Redmond, athlete

By Daina Makinson

I met a person today who is completely and totally awesome. I expected to be impressed. After all, Taylor Redmond's team has competed in and won both gold and silver medals for basketball in the Provincial Special Olympics.

What I wasn't expecting was to be so blown away by a 21 year old young man who has so much energy, positivity and a smile that knocks you over with delight. He has Down Syndrome, hearing loss in one ear and a condition with his knee that I couldn't pronounce or even attempt to spell. But that doesn't stop him from accomplishing whatever he sets his heart on.

Initially, I met Taylor and his Dad, Steve, at the Optimist Recreation Centre (ORC) gymnasium to find out what it is that they like about the community facility. But before I share my findings, I want to talk about Taylor some more.

He loves public speaking. He recently spoke at The Knights of Columbus Provincial Conference to an audience of over 500 people. Um, wow. You or I would be shaking in our sandals, or in my case Crocs but not Taylor.

He was calm and opened with a joke about the Leafs...fans insert boo hooing here...eloquently thanked the organization for their support and took his bow at the standing ovation. When I asked him why loves to speak to groups he answered that it makes him happy.

He loves to fund raise. He was the top fundraiser for Bay-Street Hoops, raising over $3500 for the organization that donates to youth charities. For his effort he got to ring the opening bell at the Toronto Stock Exchange.

He has learned to read, a feat more difficult for those with Down Syndrome. I suspect his ability and love of reading have helped him to become such an inspiration when he delivers his talks to people, who are
